Revision rate unlikely to reach highest level seen after global financial crisis

Thoughts on downward revision to tax revenues in third extra budget

One focal point in the third supplementary budget in FY20 is the size of the downward revision to tax revenues. Currently, tax revenues are estimated at ¥63.5tn. The revision rates of -5%, -10%, -15%, and -20% would reduce such revenues by ¥3.2tn, ¥6.4tn, ¥9.5tn, and ¥12.7tn, respectively. The figures after the global financial crisis can be used as references, in which the revision rate vs. the estimated amount was -13.3% in FY08 and -20.0% in FY09. Regarding FY20, the actual result for October was announced on 1 December. Given the rate of progress on collection, we estimate that the revision rate will be around -10% to slightly above -10%, close to the level in FY08, without reaching the -20.0% seen in FY09.

Among the estimated tax revenues in FY20, large items on a value basis are consumption tax of ¥21.7tn, withholding income tax of ¥16.2tn, and corporate tax of ¥12.1tn. Regarding consumption tax, the y/y growth rate has been low until October 2020 despite the hike in the tax rate in October 2019, suggesting that the collection may be as severe as in FY09. However, as the worst period for consumption was the Apr-Jun quarter, a certain degree of recovery can be expected after that. The actual collection of withholding income tax has been largely in line with the budget until October probably because the employment condition has not worsened that much despite the COVID-19 pandemic. Although we need to factor in lower winter bonuses and higher numbers of unemployed, it is significant that up to the halfway point the collection has proceeded in line with the plan. As for corporate tax, the divergence between the actual collection and the budget has widened to the level close to that in FY08. However, FY09 witnessed a large amount of tax refunds to loss-making companies, and therefore the cumulative tax amount as of October was in negative territory, which was quite a severe situation in comparison with the current situation.

The revision is not necessarily made in parallel with the collection progress, which will bring forecasters to tears. However, if the revision rate of tax revenues in the FY20 third extra budget is around -10% to slightly above -10%, a downward revision of around ¥6-7tn is estimated (-¥6tn in our 24 Nov report).

Assumptions, Significance and Limitations of Credit Ratings

Credit ratings assigned by Standard & Poor's are statements of opinion on the future credit quality of specific issuers or issues as of the date they are expressed and they are not indexes which show the probability of the occurrence of the failure to pay by the issuer or a specific debt and do not guarantee creditworthiness. Credit ratings are not a recommendation to purchase, sell or hold any securities, or a statement of market liquidity or prices in the secondary market of any issues.

Credit ratings may change depending on various factors, including issuers' performance, changes in external environment, performance of underlying assets, creditworthiness of counterparties and others. Standard & Poor's conducts rating analysis based on information it believes to be provided by the reliable source and assigns credit ratings only when it believes there is enough information in terms of quality and quantity to make a conclusion. However, Standard & Poor's does not perform an audit, due diligence or independent verification of any information it receives from the issuer or a third party, or guarantee its accuracy, completeness or timeliness of the results by using the information. Moreover, it needs to be noted that it may incur a potential risk due to the limitation of the historical data that are available for use depending on the rating.

Assumptions, Significance and Limitations of Credit Ratings

Credit ratings are Moody's Investors Service's ("MIS") current opinions of the relative future credit risk of entities, credit commitments, or debt or debt-like securities. MIS defines credit risk as the risk that an entity may not meet its contractual, financial obligations as they come due and any estimated financial loss in the event of default. Credit ratings do not address any other risk, including but not limited to: liquidity risk, market value risk, or price volatility. Credit ratings do not constitute investment or financial advice, and credit ratings are not recommendations to purchase, sell, or hold particular securities. No warranty, express or implied, as to the accuracy, timeliness, completeness, merchantability or fitness for any particular purpose of any such rating or other opinion or information, is given or made by MIS in any form or manner whatsoever.

Based on the information received from issuers or from public sources, the credit risks of the issuers or obligations are assessed. MIS adopts all necessary measures so that the information it uses in assigning a credit rating is of sufficient quality and from sources MIS considers to be reliable. However, MIS is not an auditor and cannot in every instance independently verify or validate information received in the rating process.

Assumptions, Significance and Limitations of Credit Ratings

Ratings assigned by Fitch are opinions based on established criteria and methodologies. Ratings are not facts, and therefore cannot be described as being "accurate" or "inaccurate". Credit ratings do not directly address any risk other than credit risk. Credit ratings do not comment on the adequacy of market price or market liquidity for rated instruments. Ratings are relative measures of risk; as a result, the assignment of ratings in the same category to entities and obligations may not fully reflect small differences in the degrees of risk. Credit ratings, as opinions on relative ranking of vulnerability to default, do not imply or convey a specific statistical probability of default.

In issuing and maintaining its ratings, Fitch relies on factual information it receives from issuers and underwriters and from other sources Fitch believes to be credible. Fitch conducts a reasonable investigation of the factual information relied upon by it in accordance with its ratings methodology, and obtains reasonable verification of that information from independent sources, to the extent such sources are available for a given security or in a given jurisdiction. The assignment of a rating to any issuer or any security should not be viewed as a guarantee of the accuracy, completeness, or timeliness of the information relied on in connection with the rating or the results obtained from the use of such information. If any such information should turn out to contain misrepresentations or to be otherwise misleading, the rating associated with that information may not be appropriate. Despite any verification of current facts, ratings can be affected by future events or conditions that were not anticipated at the time a rating was issued or affirmed.
